

pete allibone

director of photography

I began my career as a photographer, which provided me with a fundamental understanding of lighting, composition and storytelling through imagery. This continues to be a great passion in my life. I went on to study professional broadcasting at Ravensbourne College followed by a studio camera position. In pursuit of more adventurous projects I moved on and spent the next four years as a camera assistant at Shepperton Studios, developing my skills.

In the years since I have enjoyed working with talented and inspiring crews on every continent from the jungles of Africa, Indonesia and Central America to the Himalayas, Siberia and Antarctica. I have built up a collection of programs, series', films and awards of which I am very proud. In addition to adventure and science based documentaries, I also have worked on various dramas, natural history and feature documentaries as well as numerous promos, commercials and feature films.
